

Sally Williamson is a trusted resource for developing leaders at Fortune 100 companies, nationwide.

For the last 30 years, she has coached C-level executives, taught workshops for mid-level managers and created development programs for high-potential employees. Her expertise is spoken communication, and her passion is helping leaders at all levels become better communicators.

Employees at companies such as Delta Air Lines, ESPN, Kaiser Permanente and the Walt Disney Company have experienced the transforming power of Sally's coaching combined with tools such as videotaping and custom exercises to advance their careers.

Sally is the president and founder of Sally Williamson and Associates, a communications consulting firm. She is also a recognized expert on Executive Presence and published her first book, The Hidden Factor: Executive Presence, six years ago.

In 2014, Sally authored her second book, Leading Executive Conversations, which validates and resolves the disconnect that exists between managers and executives during high-level conversations.

She is currently working on her third book, Storylines and Storytelling – What They Remember and Repeat.

Sally and her team are based in Atlanta, Georgia, but travel frequently to client locations.